expressed that the management has decided to give three evenings of lectures when, from the fact that no course seats would be out, the en-tire house would be available. On Thursday evening Mr. Stoddard will repeat his lecture on Jerusalem, which was greeted before with overflowing houses. No ren.iniscences of tour-ist days could be more fascinating than those relating to his trip to Norway, land of the mid-night sun, which will be the attraction for Fri-day evening. And on Mr. Stoddard's farewell day here, Saturday, the 26th, both in the after-noon and evening, he will produce his most absorbing and impressive lecture on the Passion Play at Oberammergau. Then no more Stod-time in 1894, to bring out the most important and enjoyable travel scenes of his life.

HARRIS BIJOU THEATER.—The attraction at Harris Bijou Theater for the coming week is "The Burglar." This play was originally a one-act comedietta, founded on Mrs. Burnett's pretty story, Editha's Burgiar. It was so suc-cessful as a curtain raiser that it was rewritten and put into its present shape by Mr. Augustus Thomas, author of "Alabama," and produced at the Madison Square Theater in New York, where it made a great hit, running the entire summer to large and enthusiastic audiences. The play presents a story so pure and so true to nature that its popularity is assured. The sentimental parts are flavored at intervals with clever bits of comedy, thus forming on the whole an artistic intermingling of humor and pathos. There is just enough sensation in the play to please those who desire that form of amusement without at any time introducing any blood and thunder climpyes that would of company is an excellent one;

THEIR ARMORY TO BE TRANSFORMED INTO A VERIT ABLE FOREST-NO FANCY GOODS TO BE SOLD, BUT PRUITS, CIGARS AND CONFECTIONERY-IT WILL OPEN WEDNESDAY-THE COMMITTEES.

When the Washington Light Infantry Corps finds it necessary or desirable to raise a sum of money it has but little difficulty in meeting the necessity. Just now it requires a limited smount with which to purchase fatigue uniforms for the command, and within the next two weeks it will probably have all the cash it looking for. The Infantry boys know how get what they want without taxing their friends, and they generally introduce some novel method of reaching the end aimed at. They did not want to give a fair, for faire draw heavily upon pocket books without, as a rule, giving too much in return, so a scheme was devised which had in it the merit of being unlike any entertainment ever given in this country.

The plans have been fully developed and are now complete, and on Wednesday evening next people who go to the Light Infantry Armory provided either with tickets or with a sufficiency of money will be permitted to enjoy an entertainment which is called

The great pilars will be completely covered with artificial verdure, while rustic houses and rustic seats will be scattered throughout the great room for the pleasure and accommodation of visitors.

WHAT WILL BE SOLD. There will be no booths for the sale of fancy goods, but there will be elaborately beautified pavilions, where may be purchased cigars, flowers, fruit and confections. In one corner will be a gypsy camp and in another will be the Old Homestead well. At one end of a grove of cedars and palms will be several targets; at the other will be numerous rifles and a supply of ammunition. Prizes will be given both to ladies and gentlemen for excellence in shooting. In the locker room refreshments of the customary description will be for sale at very moderate just at present no announcement can be made as to their nature. The festival will be a pleasant something with which to while away an evening, either with or without the best girl niment. A very fine orchestra has been engaged for the ten evenings, and this will not be the least of the attractions.

Through Superintendent Powell invitations have been extended to the teachers and children of the schools in Mr. Powell's division to visit the festival on Saturday next from 1 o'clock until 5 p. m. Similar courtesies have been extended to various orphan asylums in the District, and from several of them acceptances have been received. These children will be guests of the corps for that afternoon. The preparatory work has been a very weighty affair, but it has at last been completed, and by Tuesday evening everything will be in readiness for the commencement of business. The fes-

ival will not, however, be open to the public until Wednesday evening; it will continue open for ten days, Sunday excluded. The formal opening of the festival will be committed to the District Commissioners. President Douglass is expected to deliver an address. Gen. ALBAUGH'S.—Pauline Hall and her opera company will appear at Albaugh's Opera House next week in a grand revival of Offenbach's opera comique. "Madame Favart," which has not been heard here for years. No labor or expense has been spared to give it in scenery, costumes and general appointments a splendid production. It is one of the few comic operas that have a good sensible plot that does not require the comedians to introduce horse play to make it amusing, and the music is acknowledged to be the lightest and most popular of any of Offenbach's many musical works. Miss Hall, in the title role, will appear to great advantage, she never having played a part before that gives her so much scope for acting and singing. She impersonates the characters of a French peasant girl, a waitress, a court lady, a soubrette, an old countess, a Tyrolese peddler boy and Venus. Her costumes and dresses for these characters will be tasteful and costly. Geo Boniface, jf., plays the role of Charles Favart, the unfortunate comedian of the Bouffes Theater, Paris. Miss Addie Cora Reed has a pretty part in the role of Suzanne. Wm Blaisdell plays the Marquis de Ponit Sable, an old French roue, and John Prand is the Hector de Boispreau. At the Wednesday matines and on Saturday night Gilbert & Sullivan's "Trial By Jury" and Offenbach's "La Beile Helene." An inquest was held yesterday upon the bodies of Heffin and Dye, the murderers lynched early yesterday morning near Gainesville. Va. which the bodies of the men were swaying. Acting Coroner Wm. Wharton summoned the following jury: G. A. Hulfish, foreman: John W. Smith, C. L. Rector, R. S. Sharp, D. W.

the brief reports telegraphed to yesterday's STAR are confirmed. Early Thursday morning it was whispered around in Warrenton, where the murderers were confined, that a party of lynchers would break into the jail at night and lynchers would break into the jail at night and lynch the prisoners. Commonwealth's Attorney J. F. Jeffries became aware of the movement. He disguised himself and started out Thursday night to get some information and thwart the lynchers if possible. He met people coming into Warrenton by squads and at once came to the conclusion that lynching was intended. He tried to dissuade them, but as the citizens had spies out, too, the attorney found that he could not accomplish his purpose. With a view of circumventing the lynchers the prisoners were taken out secretly Thursday night and started toward Gainesville, on the Manassus Gap railroad. Charities and Correction A full report of the charitable and correctional work in the District for the past year will be made to the nineteenth national conference of Charities and Corrections, to be held at Denver from June 23 to June 29 next. Mr. Warner, the superintendent of charities, is corresponding secretary of the conference for the District. It is expected that there will be an unusually large attendance.

Mr. Warner said that from the number of railway passenger agents that had called to see him about the matter be inferred that the reduced rates to the conference would be un-usually low this year. It is likely that a special train will be run from Chicago to Denver, ar-rangements being made for all delegates east of Chicago to meet there at a given time. nounced in yesterday's STAR, succeeded Prince von Bismarck as president of the council o ministers of Prussia and chancellor of the Ger-man empire on March 20, 1890, his tenure of office lacking only two days of two years. His full name is George Leo von Caprivi de Caprera de Montecuccule, and he is, as his name indi-cates, of Italian ancestry, his father having been an eminent jurist in the Prussian state service. He was born in Berlin February 24, 1831, entered the army before he was cighteen, won rapid promotion and entered the general staff as captain in 1861.

He served with distinction in the campaigns of 1864 and 1866 and was lieutenant colonel and chief of staff of the tenth or Hanoverian corps in the Franco-German war. He became a major general in 1877, commanded a brigade of the guards in 1878, was made lieutenant general in 1882 and was transferred to the navy as successor to Gen. Slosch at the head of the admiralty in 1883.

The emperor's choice is either to force the bill through as it stands or to accept Von Caprivi's resignation. The education bill which is the cause of the ministerial crisis in Prussia and the resignation of the chancellor is a pet scheme of the emperor's own. It is said to have been introduced in the lantag without even being submitted to the ministery, and while the chancellor has supported it, it has been noticed that he did so with little evidence of zeal. It has been bitterly opposed by the whole national liberal party as well as by the special advocates of "free thought."

The bill provides not merely for state education, but for state control of religious teaching in the schools. These are distinct for catholics and Lutherans, but parents who do not belong to either of these official divisions can profess themselves adherents of one of certain specific field.

These are distinct for Catholics and Lutherans, but parents who do not belong to either of these official divisions can profess themselves adherents of one of certain specified sects and have their children educated accordingly. The opposition comes in just here, for the bill only recognizes Moravians, Quakers, Greeks, Anglicans, Hebrews and Old Lutherans as duly qualified religious bodies, and as such to receive state aid for their schools. No recognition is given to Methodists.

Old Catholics, Unitarians and Deists and free thinkers generally, and the opponents of the bill do not think it justice to those sects to compel their members to have their children subjected to compulsory religious teachings by members of other sects.

The emperor, on the other hand, is determined to stamp out the so-called liberalism in religion, and the religious sects having this as the bill from every direction, and especially from university professors and teachers, but these have been warned that their continued criticism of the measure may subject them to the discipline of law. It is all a part of the young emperor's fight against modern tendencies.
